SEWELL

Anna. 1820-78. Author of "Black Beauty" lived at Blue Lodge, Abson. Her mother, Mary was a prolific ballad writer: a poem "The Little Forester" was set in KW Forest. The women instituted mothers' meetings and a working men's club at Wick. One incident, the death of Reuben Smith, in Anna's famous book (her only one) was said to be based on a true life incident at Wick when a young groom was exercising a horse for the Sewells, when it slipped and he was thrown under the wheels of a passing cart.

Benjamin Tillett, Trade Union Leader. Ben Tillett born John Street, Easton, the son of a labourer, in 1860. After moving to London he became active in the Tea Operatives & General Labourers' Association, and became their General Secretary. Leader of Great Dock Strike 1889, which led to the General Labourers' Union. During the dock strike he lost his speech impediment and became a great orator. Ben Tillett became General Secretary of General Labourers' Union and 20,000 London men joined. He helped found the Labour Party, but became critical of its approach and leadership. In 1910 he helped establish the National Transport & General Workers Federation which became the Transport and General Workers Union. He also helped to establish the Labour paper, the Daily Herald. He was elected MP for North Salford in 1917 as an Independent, but later stood for the Labour Party. He retired from Parliament in 1931 and died 1943. Commemorated by the montage at Easton station and on a plaque of Easton Time-Signs, unveiled in 2000.
